PUBLIC OWNED UTILITY LOSES BY 2 TO 1 VOTE

VOTERS to the number of 3145 turned out Tuesday to deliver a 2-to-1 coup de grace to the proposed Monterey Peninsula Utility District. The vote stood 2107 against the district, 1038 for forming it.

Carmel citizens cast a total of 496 votes, 352 no and 144 yes. The division by precincts was: No. 1 (Arts and Crafts Hall) yes 71, no 149; No. 2 (Fire house) yes 73, no 203. In Pebble Beach-Point Lobos precinct (Crespi Hall) the vote stood 49 for and 111 against.

The four precincts of Monterey returned a vote of 389 for, 699 against. Pacific Grove's four precincts voted 425 for, 791 against. The vote in Del Monte precinct No. 1 was 31 for, 154 against; Del Monte No. 2, 80 for, 265 against.

Howard Leads

In view of the defeat of the district, interest in the vote for the board of directors is purely academic, as their election hinged on the formation of the district. Frederick Paxson Howard, Carmel's unopposed candidate, received a heavy vote from his townspeople; 203 in all; 71 in precinct 1, the same number of votes as were cast for the district; 82 votes in precinct 2, nine votes more than were cast for the district, indicating that that number of "antis" still favored him if the district were to be formed; 50 votes at Serra-Crespi hall, one more than the total for the district.

Other Districts

John Jordan received 10 write-in votes; John Catlin and Judge George L. Wood each received one. Carmel, Pebble Beach and Point Lobos cast a total of 130 votes for Sheldon Gilmer in Ward 1, 53 for his opponent, B. A. Lee. William Fiddes of Ward 2 received 121 votes; his opponent, E. C. Smith, received 57. Arthur J. Mason in Ward 3 received 169 votes; Arthur G. Metz of Ward 4 received 184. Carmel Precinct No. 2 gave Carmel Martin 2 votes for Ward 3, 1 vote for Ward 4. He also received 1 vote at Serra Crespi hall, for which ward was not designated. At the same polling place, one vote each was cast for Bob Scripture, Dave Scripture, Murray Matthews, Dr. H. T. Wetherill, W. R. Holman and Maurice Brenner, wards not specified on the report from precinct officials.

School Board Will Meet Tuesday Evening

The June meeting of the Sunset school board of trustees, postponed because of last week of school activities, will be held next Tuesday evening, June 11. The board has signed with the Monterey Theatre Corporation a contract by which the Carmel schedule of motion pictures will be shown in the school auditorium, beginning June 14, ending September 15. Ten evenings scattered from the end of June to the first week in August have been reserved for summer events of the Carmel Music Society, and Sunday afternoon, June 30, the Christian Science church will have the auditorium for a public lecture.

Council Awards Garbage Contract to Roscelli as Opponent Retreats

MR. Fred Treat, who has been going about getting in people's hair for the past several months, received a resounding municipal slapping-down, which he did not remain to receive in person, at the council meeting Wednesday evening. He did not even remain to hear the reading of the admonitory letter which he had addressed to the city fathers, and in which, City Attorney Argyll Campbell indicated, Mr. Treat was talking about several other things than matters germain to the letting of the garbage contract. Yes, dear readers, John Roscelli is safe in his kingdom for another three years; the council gave him the contract.

His Kind Deed

"I feel I do you a favor," said Mr. Treat pompously in the letter which City Clerk Saidee Van Brower read to the council with full appreciation for its nuances, "I feel I do you a favor in suggesting that inasmuch as the present garbage contract was not granted by result of open bidding, it is not legal, and this situation should be corrected at once . . . the only way by which the privilege (sic) of garbage collection and disposal may be granted by the board of trustees is in accordance with the act (referred to by number in an earlier portion of the letter) and not otherwise . . . by calling for sealed bids and notice of such call for bids must be published for two weeks and not opened until four weeks after first publication."

Guess What!

At this point Mayor Thoburn leaned over to Councilman Catlin and whispered, "What is it that has four wheels and flies?"

The answer came from the spectator section, like a well-drilled chorus, "A Garbage Wagon!"

The city attorney was prepared for the emergency. Usually he sits hunched over the city clerk's desk, chin supported by elbow, and makes his remarks confidentially into the palm of his hand. On this occasion he arose to his feet, shook his ruffled plumage and grainned expansively.

Made a Re-treat

"Is Mr. Treat here?" he asked. That was the first the audience had noted that Mr. Treat had unobtrusively evaporated just before the reading of his letter.

"Do you want me to get him?" asked Chief of Police Bob Norton eagerly.

"If you will, please," answered Mr. Campbell. Mr. Norton left, but returned empty-handed.

"I saw his friend," reported the chief, "and he said he knows where Fred is, and will bring him right up." But neither Mr. Treat nor the friend

Work on Mission Roof to Be Begun on Downie's Return

About $1300 was realized from the benefit Carmel Vanities performance at Hotel Del Monte last week, to restore the roof of Carmel Misison. With $1500 available from the Serra festival last year, Architect Milton Latham estimates that about half the required money is available. The roof alone will require about $5000; other restoration will bring the needed total to at least $12,000.

Actual work of repairing the roof will wait upon the return of Harry Downie, the curator, from the San Diego exposition.

Paul Beygrau Is Called by Death

Death came to Paul Beygrau, civil engineer and artist, Tuesday morning at his Carmel home. He was 64 years of age, and his passing followed a long illness.

Born in London on Dec. 28, 1871, Mr. Beygrau came to the United States as a boy in his teens, to California about 15 years ago, and, with his wife, Marie Beygrau, to Carmel four years ago. Trained as a civil engineer, he spent many years at this profession, and late in life turned to practise of arts which had been a life-long hobby. He attained fame as a painter of animals, and has executed commissions for the Duke of York (now George V of England), Collis P. Huntington, Sir Wilfred Laurier, and others. Despite failing health during recent years his gentle and loveable personality had endeared him to many Carmel friends.

Besides Mrs. Beygrau the deceased is survived by a brother, Frederick Beygrau in New York City; and a sister, Miss Helen Beygrau, in Tokio. A niece, Mrs. Elise Tolbert of San Jose, is with Mrs. Beygrau.

Christian Science funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Dorney's funeral chapel, to be followed by cremation.

WHITSUNDAY SERVICES

Whitsunday, June 9, will be observed with a special service of communion and fellowship at All Saints church, Carmel, at 11 o'clock in the morning. All members are urged to attend, and others are invited by the pastor, Rev. Austin B. Chinn.

ERNST BACON WILL DIRECT SERIES OF EVENTS TO BEGIN WITH RECITAL ON JUNE 25

MANY Carmel musicians and outstanding artists from California and elsewhere will participate in the first of an annual series of music festivals to be given here this summer. More than any previous event, the summer season in Carmel this year will serve to identify the village as a center of creative endeavors in music. Inspired by the 250th anniversary of the birth of Johann Sebastian Bach, the outstanding event will be a four-day Bach festival, preceded and followed by a series of concerts of outstanding brilliance. Ernst Bacon, conductor of the Monterey Peninsula Community orchestra, will be director of the festival, which is presented by the Denny-Watrous Gallery, sponsored by the Carmel Music Society and the Orchestra Association.

First on June 25

A series of Tuesday evening concerts offered by the Music Society will begin June 25 with a recital by Sascha Jacobinoff, solo violinist of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, who arrived here this week to spend the summer. On June 9 the Abas String Quartet, made up of Nathan Abas, violinist, Abe Weiss, violist, Theodore Norman, second violinist and Frits Gaillard, cellist, will appear.

Nightly concerts from July 18 to 21 inclusive will be devoted to the music of Bach. With the exception of the closing evening, when the St. Matthew Passion will be presented at Carmel Mission, all concerts will be given at Sunset school auditorium. Season ticket holders will have the privilege of attending morning lectures at Denny-Watrous Gallery by Beatrice Colton, of the music department of University of California, when the music of Bach and the music of each evening will be discussed.

Many Great Artists

Among the artists engaged for the festival are Ernst Bacon, pianist; Sascha Jacobinoff, who will play the G minor concerto with the orchestr; Gunnar Johansen, who will play the greater piano works; Marie Montana, who will sing the soprano arias in the cantatas and the St. Matthew Passion; Evalina Silva, who will do the contralto arias; Gastone Usigli, as guest conductor for the second orchestra concert; Noel Sullivan, basso of Carmel; Doris Ballard, Berkeley violinist; Winifred Connolly, viola, of Berkeley; Mildred Sahlstrom Wright, Carmel violinist; Steen Sconhoft, baritone from San Francisco, who is summering here; Winifred Howe, Alice Austin and Marjorie Legge Wurzmann, Carmel pianists; and Cesare Claudio, cellist.

The community orchestra will be augmented by 15 or more professional musicians, with whom it will be

Club Garden Section Plans Picnic Wednesday

Members of the garden section of Carmel Woman's club will participate in a picnic to be given next Wednesday, June 12, at the Carmel Valley ranch of Mrs. J. G. Hooper. The affair is for members of the garden section only. Cars will leave Devendorf Plaza, on the Ocean avenue side, at 11 o'clock, and transportation is being arranged for those who have no cars by Mrs. E. H. Yocum. Those planning to attend should phone Mrs. Yocum, Carmel 748, not later than tomorrow. Luncheon will be provided by Mrs. Hooper. The ranch is located in the Robles del Rio tract.

— Activity —

Many New Homes Being Erected

Aside from two major construction jobs which swell the monthly building permit total to a figure rather fantastic for Carmel, there is continued evidence of healthy activity both in the village and on the Point, where a notable number of new houses are in process of construction. Building permits taken out during May and the first few days of June, for small remodeling projects and the building of several cottages total nearly $10,000; $15,900 for the Goold building and $50,000 for the motion picture theatre make the tidy aggregate of over $75,000 worth of building now in progress or soon to start.

For Col. and Mrs. John Cocke, Hugh Comstock is to start construction immediately on a new home at the corner of Mission and Eleventh, to cost about $4000. Miles Bain is building a $3200 frame and stucco cottage for Mrs. Mabel Graham at Camino Real and Tenth. Marion Kingsland has authorized the construction of a cottage on Santa Fe to cost about $1100; of pine and redwood "board and batten" construction. Charles Hall is building it.

A $350 addition is being built by Fred Bixler on George Butler's house at Scenic and Eighth. Elizabeth McClung White is making improvements costing about $250 on her cottage on San Carlos. Miles Bain has charge of a $350 addition to the Elizabeth Pelley house on Casanova.

One of the newest of numerous building projects on Carmel Point is the $3500 home being built by M. J. Murphy Inc., for Major and Mrs. G. H. Totten, at the corner of Bayview and Martin Way. Robert Stanton is the architect. Murphy is also building the Goold building on Ocean avenue.

COUNCILMEN ENTERTAIN FOR VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPARTMENT

In appreciation for the fine work of the volunteer fire department in coping with the conflagration at the Theatre of the Golden Bough, Carmel, in the person of her five councilmen, tendered a dinner at Pine Inn last evening to the local smoke-eaters, and members of the Highlands, Monterey and Pacific Grove departments who assisted.

Bach Festival During Summer

a privilege for the local members to play.

A chorus of 50 local and visiting singers, with full orchestra and soloists, will present two cantatas, "Weinen, Klagen, Sorgen, Zagen" and "Got, der Herr, ist Sunn und Schild." The orchestra will present the Suite in D major; and will play various concertos, with solo violinists, two violins, two pianos, and other solo combinations. The Vivaldi-Bach Concerto Grosso will be given by two violins, cello and orchestra. Sonatas for violin and piano, great arias, chorals and sacred songs will make this such a musical feast as few cities in the United States are enabled to enjoy, and that no town of the size of Carmel, save a village dedicated to the arts, could hope for.

Following the festival, Gunnar Johansen will present a concert on July 30, and as the climax and conclusion to a summer of outstanding music, "Les Jou-Joux," a continental revue after the manner of a European variety theater will be given August 6 by a group of artists headed by Ivan Markoff.

—who apparently wished to save him the ignominy of being called for by a policeman, even one with a blue uniform and shiny brass trimmings —reappeared.' ("Re-treat," remarked Mayor Thoburn).

Campbell Takes the Rap

"Inasmuch as I advised the council to award the garbage contract in the manner in which they did two years ago, I feel that I should take the rap in this scolding," said Mr. Campbell, after overcoming his disappointment that Mr. Treat had departed. "Mr. Treat was kind enough to come to my office and tell me that I had made a grave legal error. I thanked him and said perhaps I should be collecting garbage and he should be the city attorney. The act which he discusses so learnedly—after consulting a distinguished lawyer in San Francisco, he said—refers to counties or combined cities and counties, and not to incorporated cities."

Statement Applauded

Resounding applause greeted the city attorney's oration. Ensued a short and informal—very informal—discussion in which councilmen and spectators exchanged anecdotes on the alleged racketeer methods of the would-be garbage man. He has told people in Hatton Fields, and on the Point, it was said, that Roscelli had no right to collect garbage outside Carmel; that Roscelli was going out of business, and by various other methods he allegedly sought to "muscle in," including the use of an employe whom Roscelli had discharged for dishonesty, who promptly got into similar trouble in Carmel, and is now musing on his sins in the county jail. A story which no one has taken very seriously, nor the "documentary evidence" which was supposed to prove it, hinted that one of the councilmen had offered to throw the Carmel garbage contract his way, for a consideration.

Mr. Roscelli was at the meeting, and was represented by counsel, no less. A Mr. Street of the firm of Hudson & Martin made his proposition, which was to pay the council $700 a year for three years, or if they wanted to dicker on a six-year basis, boosting the ante to $850 a year for the last three years. The council accepted on the three-year basis, and Mr. Roscelli, accompanied by his lawyer and what looked like a bodyguard of four stalwarts, filed from the council chambers to the accompaniment of applause.

TO TEACH PHOTOGRAPHY

The University of California Extension Division has started a new class in the principles and practices of photography at the Oakland Extension Center, with P. Douglas Anderson, member of the Royal Photographic Society of England and former editor of a national camera magazine, as instructor. Ten lectures are to be given, five of which will take the form of field trips.

Night Policeman Proposition Put Up to Business Houses

Unfounded rumors that the council was thinking of hiring another night policeman led to three applications being received for the post at the council meeting Wednesday evening. Doyle Shannon, George S. Heathorne and Bill W. France were the applicants. Councilman John Catlin pointed that in no other town the size of Carmel does the municipality pay even one night patrolman. If additional protection is desired, he said, the Business Association should hire him, with the aid possibly of a small contribution from the city. Nightwatchman's duties of trying store locks, investigating suspicious lights, etc., interfere with the duties of the night patrolman, said the councilman.

Stockton Socialites Arrive Via Airplane

Week-end tripping via airplane is the highly modern diversion of a group of Stockton socialites who made the Monterey Peninsula their destination last Saturday and Sunday. Flying in six planes, with their wives and several friends, making a party of 14, they landed at the airport at Del Monte Saturday, were greeted by Jack Jordan, Ranald Cockburn and Winsor Josselyn. Making Pine Inn their headquarters, they formed a party at Hotel Del Monte Saturday night, and flew back to Stockton Sunday. Leaders of the party were Henry Von Berg, Les Oranges, George Grimsley, Don Kuhwarth and Don Rider.

SIGN SANS LIGHTS WILL GUIDE THEATRE SEEKERS

The Monterey Theatre Corporation may put a sign, four feet by ten feet by 10 inches, on the side of Staniford's drug store, but it may not be illuminated, by concealed lights or otherwise, the council ruled Wednesday evening. Permission was sought in a letter signed by S. J. Lyon, local manager. The sign would designate the location of the temporary motion picture theatre in the auditorium of Sunset school, and would be placed for three months only, until the new theatre is built, Mr. Lyon said.

Nuff-Sed, the Thirsty Camel, Star of Play

By PHIL NESBITT

"Nuff-Sed," the thirsty camel!

On Wednesday night, the Douglas School presented an undoubtedly whimsical version of the tale from Scheherazade, concerning the remarkable destiny of one 'Aladdin and the Lamp.' How he came to possess this dusty lighting fixture, and its consequences to him afterwards was the basis for Byington Ford's directorship of the children in Wednesday night's presentation.

Best of the young actors was a bored and thirsty camel, ever in search of a 'tall drink of water.' Witishly, Nuff-Sed, the camel, would rub shank against shank, stand on three legs, dance prettily and call for liquid nourishment. Aladdin, the boy who lives in ancient Bagdad, was a clear-voiced youngster, well up to a role demanding much optimism and discrimination. To own a lamp such as Aladdin had certainly would require discretion of action.

A flash light bulb's explosion provided the curtain raiser for the appearance of the Genii. Those things requested, consisting of "fine robes" and heaps of glittering treasure trove dropped conveniently from the little stage's loft, as did the hose containing "water from all the heavens," Nuff-Sed's refreshment. Very funny when Nuff-Sed complained about getting a bolt of lightning while gulping the water.

A note of innocent confusion intruded itself slightly. There seemed doubt as to whether the story was Chinese or Persian. At any rate, young Aladdin wore the hat much in fashion in Shanghai today.

The little show revealed honest effort, earnest deportment and considerable humor. Byington Ford probably enjoyed the work and the children must have been altogether delighted, for these qualities came forth.

Hagemeyer Denied New Sign Permit

By a three-to-two vote the city council in session Wednesday evening refused permission to Johan Hagemeyer to restore his ten-year-old sign to the municipally-owned tree on Ocean avenue which it has adorned for ten years. The sign, recently removed at the order of the chief of police, was restored without receiving the council's permission; John Catlin said at the meeting that he had advised Mr. Hagemeyer to put it up, and that he would take responsibility for its reappearance. A letter from Mr. Hagemeyer was read, but the matter of legalizing the sign, which is now in place, was defeated by the negative vote of Councilmen Rowntree, Brownell and Burge. Reason given: their reluctance to give to the photographer a privilege which has been denied to others.

LOCAL SCOUTS TO JOIN IN CAMP WING ACTIVITY

Plans were made for the participation of the two local Boy Scout troops in the activities of Camp Wing, Big Sur summer scout camp, during the second week in July, by the scout troop committee in monthly executive session Wednesday noon. The committee also discussed the possibility of sending two boys to Washington, D. C., to the Scout Jamboree this summer. The delegates would be selected on the basis of their standing in scouting, interest and desire to attend.

The troop committee expressed itself as well pleased with the progress of the Sea Scouts, who are receiving valuable experience in their own boat, and with small sailboats on Carmel bay. The highly favorably reception of the court of honor last Friday night was also commented upon.

No Report Made on New City Hall

No report was given at the council meeting Wednesday evening by the committee which is investigating new or improved quarters for the city hall. Joseph A. Burge and Dr. R. E. Brownell are the council's representatives on the committee, acting with John E. Abernethy and John Jordan. Edward Hoefeld, representative of the Carmel Development Company, which owns the present city hall, was present at the council meeting, with Paul Prince, local manager, to offer extensive improvements if the council would consent to remain in the Dolores street building. Mr. Hoefeld asked the council to have an architect go over the building and recommend whatever changes would add to the convenience and safety of the quarters, mentioning specifically another exit, rearrangement of lights, instalation of a drinking fountain. Rent of the present city hall, formerly $90, is now $75.

Dr. R. A. Kocher has offered the city use of three offices and an assembly room 15 feet by 38 feet, in his building at the corner of Seventh and Dolores, for $75 a month. Also for $75, M. J. Girls' League New Chief In Charge

"The old order changeth, yielding place to the new," thus the retiring president of the Girls' League of the Pacific Grove high school, Barbara Ingham, turned over the gavel to the new presiding officer, Jean Perkins; and Helen Randol and Marjorie Banta yielded their places as secretary and treasurer, to Barbara Stutzman and Louise Ingham.

Barbara Ingham and Hoshi Irwakiry were the recipients of pins which are given each year to a senior and a lower classman who are found to score 100 per cent in character, scholarship, and activity in Girls' League. Elizabeth de Lorimier and Louise Cowen were given pins denoting them the best girl athletes in the senior class. Jean Perkins, winner of the ping-pong tournament, Eleanor Beaumont, winner of the archery contest, Clara Callender, winner of the badminton tourney, and Mildred Cashin, winner of the tennis tournament, were given due recognition.

The retiring president wished the new president success and she in turn responded in kind, and the last meeting of the Girls' League ended Tuesday.

Organist Gives Quality Program

A PROGRAM of taste and high musical quality was presented by Mary Elizabeth Gloeckner, Monterey organist, and Andrew Sessink, Carmel tenor, at Monterey Presbyterian church Tuesday evening, as the June offering of the Musical Art club. Miss Gloeckner proved her versatility and fine technical command of the organ in an exacting and difficult program, which perhaps could have been improved by the omission of several of the lesser numbers. Her performance of the Bach Cathedral Fugue, the lovely muted Traditional Melody by Kreckel, the Saint-Saens Benediction, the first movement from the fine Sonata by Guilmant were all that could be asked. The seventh number could have been omitted from the program without detracting from its worth, and the Mendelssohn number was long and rather fatiguing, following an already full program. The organ numbers were played with the church in darkness, save for rosy spotlights shining on baskets of red roses in the pulpit, and the pool of yellow light about the organ.

Miss Gloeckner capably accompanied Mr. Sessink; at the organ for his first group, and at the piano for those following. The effect in Schubert's "To the Sea" with the organ softly singing a duet with the sweet, high tenor, was particularly pleasing.

Another Schubert, the ethereally delicate "My Peace Thou Art" was the high point of Mr. Sessink's numbers, both for quality and excellence of execution. His audiences continue to marvel at the ease with which he produces tone, the silvery sweet quality of his voice and its great range and particular excellence in the higher registers.

Rev. George E. Petrie, pastor of the church, spoke briefly in appreciation of the program and Mrs. Millicent Sears of the Musical Art Club announced coming events, spoke of the unifying influence of music. A reception in the church parlor, with refreshments, concluded the evening.

THEY LINGERED AMONG US

By . . . W. L. OVERSTREET

As the date approaches marking my 25 years of continuous residenct in Carmel, which will be on June 10 next, I find myself in a reminiscent mood. I go back over the years, recalling this one and that one.

As I consult my long list (compiled from memory) of those who at one time or another impressed their personality upon the community I like to think of them as the builders of Carmel. Not the material Carmel, but the cultural, social and artistic Carmel. The Carmel that has gone out to the world. The Carmel we would like it to be always. The kind of Carmel that all the world comes to find.

In making up the lists of those who have dwelt among us and who by their work or former achievement or presence made of Carmel a distinctive community, that made it "different," I have separated them into two groups.

Group one is made up of men and women who have passed to the Great Beyond. Group two are those who at one time or another resided here, but who are now carrying on elsewhere. I have refrained from mentioning, except incidentally, residents now here and alive.

It should be remembered that in recording the names I am trusting to memory entirely, so it is possible that I may omit some one who should have been included. Should such prove to be the case I am sorry. Then again, others are omitted whose residence was very brief or who made a very faint ripple.

The names are set down in no particular order. I have written of them as I recalled them.

Those Who Have Passed Away

James F. Devendorf, co-founder of Carmel and Carmel Highlands, realtor, builder, financier. Known as "The Father of Carmel."

Frank H. Powers, associate founder of Carmel and Carmel Highlands. Lawyer, author, promoter of the arts.

Joseph W. Hand, early associate of James F. Devendorf. Afterwards independent realty dealer and laundry repersentative. Actor. Known as Carmel's "Grand Old Man." Pony express rider in 1862.

Mary A. Hand, club woman. Charter member of the Arts and Crafts Club. Six years a trustee of Sunset School.

William Greer Harrison, clubman. Made his home here after retiring from the insurance business in San Francisco. For many years president of the Olympic Club. Intimate friend of James J. Corbett. Wrote "Runnymede," produced in the Forest Theatre.

Ella Reid Harrison, collector of rare books, philanthropist. Niece of Whitelaw Reid, editor and owner of the New York "Tribune." Wife of Judge Ralph Chandler Harrison, in whose memory Carmel's splendid library was founded. Met a very tragic death.

Thomas Vincent Cator, musician and composer. Active in all community musical and theatrical affairs. Composer of "Zamboanga" and lyrics of "The Thief of Bagdad."

Rev. Ramon M. Mestres, clergyman. While not a resident of Carmel, he was for many years pastor of Carmel Mission, spending much time there. He was co-author of the pageant, "Junipero Serra."

Hiram W. Fenner, physician. Devoted latter years of his life to intensive scientific research, and was an authority on medical problems having to do with vitamines.

David Starr Jordan, scientist, educator. President of Leland Stanford Junior University. The first Stanford professor to erect a residence here. "Professors' Row" on Camino Real included the homes of Professor John M. Stillman, Vernon Kellogg, George J. Peirce and Guido Marx.

John Fleming Wilson, fictionist. Wrote many sea stories, though it was said he had never been to sea. One time instructor in Greek in Princeton University. Met a tragic death in Pasadena.

Alfred E. Burton, scientist. One-time dean of the Boston School of Technology. Conducted eclipse expeditions to Greenland and to Georgia. A hard and efficient worker in all departments of Forest Theatre activities.

James Worthington, astronomer. Fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society. Maintained a conservatory and telescope here. An austeur and serious Englishman, his nickname, "Jimmy," did not seem to fit him very well.

George Sterling, poet. Achieved world-wide fame as one of the outstanding poets of his generation. Ambrose Bierce designated him "The world's greatest living poet." His home in the Eighty-acre Tract was the mecca of many literary celebrities.

Thomas Shrewsbery Parkhurst, artist. His work was exhibited in all the world's great galleries and many of his paintings made at his Carmel Highlands studio were awarded first prizes. He came here from Toledo, Ohio.

Bertha Newberry, poet and playwright. Published several outstanding poems. Author of the splendid play of Egypt, "The Toad," presented in the Forest Theatre and in the University of California Greek Theatre in Berkeley.

Tom Bickle, druggist. Tom, no doubt was a good druggist, but many of his friends always maintained that he had missed his calling, averring that he should have been a professional actor. He loved the stage and gave much of his time and fine talent to local productions.

Vernon Kellogg, zoologist. Professor in Stanford University. Author of much scientific matter. Intimate of Herbert Hoover and associate of the former president in Belgian Relief administration.

Arthur Vachell, artist. Many of his canvases hang in the most exclusive homes of America and England. A valuable worker in the Forest Theatre. His stage settings were unique. His poster for "The Piper" is still outstanding after 25 years of fine posters. Affectionately called "A. V."

Charles O. Goold, liveryman. Owner of the stage line between Carmel and Monterey, employer of Sam Powers and "Dad" Hamilton, picturesque stage drivers. He was a booster always for things artistic, and frequently "held the sack" for down and out artists and writers.

Mary Austin, writer. Owner of the famous Carmel "Wicki-up." Author of many books, amongst them "The Land of Little Rain," "Isidro," "The Arrow-Maker." Authority on Indian lore.

John Northern Hilliard, editorial writer, correspondent. Co-author with Herbert Heron of the Stevenson play, "Tusitala." Producer and actor in several successful Forest Theatre offerings. Prior to his death was associated with Thurston, the magician.

John Galen Howard, architect. Professor of architecture, University of California. Designer of the Greek Theatre and other beautiful edifices on the university grounds. Business associate of Sanford White.

Ray C. DeYoe, realtor. Before coming to Carmel to associate himself in his mother's real estate office was traveling representative of a San Francisco mercantile concern. Negotiated many large and small property transactions on the Monterey Peninsula. Active in all art and civic projects. Member of the state legislature.

Ira M. Remsen, painter. Son of Professor Ira Remsen of Johns Hopkins. In addition to his ability as an artist, "Rem" was something of a playwright, giving us "Mr. Bunt" and "Rented Ranch."

Alfred P. Fraser, attorney, banker, farmer. Carmel's first mayor. An efficient and honest public official. At the time of his passing was a municipal judge. As mayor did much to help Carmel over the bumps in the early years as an incorporated city.

Chris Jorgensen, artist. Attained a high place as a painter of the scenery of Yosemite Valley. Built what is now the La Playa Hotel. Having married into the Ghirardelli family, this building was often referred to as "The Chocolate House."

Preston W. Search, educator. Lectured in educational institutions in the United States and abroad. A native of Ohio, he was an intimate friend of Presidents McKinley, Garfield and Harding. Father of Frederick Preston Search, musician.

Garnet Holme, theatre man. Playwright, director, actor. Put on many plays and pageants in the Forest Theatre and throughout the State. Trained in England for his profession. Was usually patient and considerate while directing his amateur players, but at times resorted to the reputed sarcasm of a football coach.

Jesse Lynch Williams, author. A prolific writer. In addition to his Princeton stories and New York sketches he authored several books, amongst them "Why Marry," and "They Still Fall In Love," the latter a Pebble Beach story.

Variety Program Is Gallery Event Tomorrow Night

The Denny-Watrous Gallery is raising the floor (not the roof) tomorrow evening when a specially arranged variety program, contributed by local artists, will pay for the new slanting floor, which has been installed this week so that those in the rear of the hall will see as well and as comfortably as those in front.

Tomorrow night, everyone who sits in one of the new seats will know that the price of his ticket has paid for his eminence. Friends of the gallery are taking seats and entering into the spirit of the improvement which will make this center of activity more than ever an asset to the town.

The varied program includes three of the "smash-hits" which were featured in the Follies at Del Monte last week. Ruth Austin will perform her "Rhumba" Dance, in the dazzling costume made for the occasion. Betty Carr, in her costume of shimmering gorgeousness, will do a "tap." Betty Hyde will sing in the "Sandman" act, to which the "Cellophane Girls," Roe Marie Mattimore, Babette De Moe, and Betty Glab will dance. This clever number was written by Charles Van Riper. Mary Ingalls will play Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

Steen Sconhoff, baritone, who so delighted his audience at the Music Society jinks, will sing humorous songs to Ernst Bacon's inimitable accompaniment. Phyllis La Vay will do a monologue, "A Telephone Call," by Dorothy Parker. Nor is this all. There will be several surprise features in this "floor-raising" variety program tomorrow evening.

Carmel Boy Scouts Conduct Own Court of Honor as an Innovation

OF an agreeable "differentness" was the court of honor held for Carmel Boy Scouts last Friday evening at Sunset auditorium with the program almost entirely in the hands of the boys themselves; informal, touched with humor and presenting the Boy Scout ritual with simplicity and good taste. The program took the form of a playlet written by John Patrick, before his recent departure for New York, in which a country boy, played by Jack Pelton, is given a clever sales talk by Pat Crichton, as a Boy Scout, on the benefits to be derived from scouting. Pat showed Jack a den of cub scouts in action, and Jack was impressed that this was "just what my kid brother needs."

"And scouting is just what you need," retorted Pat.

In a subsequent scene, the "country boy" was initiated as a scout, which gave an opportunity for presentation of the impressive Scout investiture ceremony, with the Sea Scouts in charge. The only appearance of grown-ups on the platform was when O. W. Bardarson and James Thoburn were escorted to the platform as "distinguished guests." Mr. Bardarson gave a short talk, and Mr. Thoburn presented the awards: second class badges to Bill Chapman, Robert Irvin, Joe McEldowney, Pat Crichton, Jerry Neikirk, Jack Pelton; first class badges to Ronald Dorsett and Hugh Smith; merit badges to Earle Dorrance, Freear Gottfried, Markham Johnston and Hugh Smith; star scout award to Earle Dorrance, all of Troop 86; second class badge to Paul Warrington of Troop 39.

The court of honor closed with the boys seated around a campfire, singing scout songs, and as the lights were gradually dimmed, taps sounded, with the glow from the fire dimly illuminating the scene.

S. F. Jazz Writer Composes Play Music

Horatio Stoll, San Francisco publisher, who outside business hours is known as the cleverst writer of jazz in northern California, has written the incidental music for "Squaring the Circle," a jest in three acts, which the Denny-Watrous Gallery is to present Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, June 20, 21, 22, under the direction of Beverley Wright.

The original date, which was advertised for this week, has been set forward so that Mr. Stoll might be present in person and himself play the music.

Horatio Stoll has had considerable experience in vaudeville and the lighter forms of music. He recently composed the music for a production of the Pine Street Players. His music for "Squaring the Circle" is already in rehearsal with the cast, which is delighted with its humor and sparkle. The "Internationale," keyed up to a jazz rhythm and written in a slightly dissonant idiom, sets the keynote of the hilarious farce which satirizes the living conditions in Soviet Russia.

Mr. Stoll himself arrives in a day or so to stay until after the play, and will rehearse daily with the cast. Phyllis La Vay, Henry Choissel, Martha Vaughan, Kevin Walace and William Shepard are having "lots of fun" singing the jazz airs and playing the roles of this contemporary farce.

First June Wedding Held at Young Home

First June wedding in Carmel was solemnized at the home of Miss Gladys Smith in Hatton Fields, Saturday morning at 10:30, when Miss Neva G. Smith of Hollister became the bride of Orin Young of Monterey. Rev. James H. N. Williams performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by little Priscilla Schou of Hollister, as bridesmaid, and the groomsman was the small son of the bridegroom, Robert Young. The service was read in a sunlit bow-window, massed with calla lilies, and roses and garden flowers lent their color and fragrance.

The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Curry Smith, were present at the ceremony, the father giving the bride in marriage. Others attending were Miss Eileen Hansen and Mrs. Carl Schou, also of Hollister. The wedding cake which was cut followed the service was decorated with an ornament from the bridal cake of Mrs. Schou, when she was married 30 years ago.

Following a wedding trip to San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will be at home at 243 Alvarado street, Monterey.

Resident Chairman Explains Plans Proposed to Celebrate Railroad Week

EPOCHAL improvements introduced by the western railroads of the United States in travel service, combined with reduced fares, are making 1935 a historic one in transportation progress and celebration of Railroad Week, June 10 to 15, said C. M. Vance, resident chairman, today.

Cities of the Monterey peninsula will play an important role in celebrations of Railroad Week to be staged by hundreds of communities in a dozen states, Mr. Vance predicted.

A "railroad conscious" spirit, more pronounced than anything of its kind in many years, is seen in the enthusiasm with which local leaders in business, education, the professions and in public life, are getting behind the plans for making the week a memorable affair.

The historical background, involving the 'winning of the west' largely through the help of the iron horse, and the epic drama of the west's elevation from wilderness to the highest civilized plane in the world within a few decades, is an important feature of the coming week, said Mr. Vance.

"But essentially the purpose of the celebration is to concentrate public interest on the tremendous improvements which have been made in rail systems than by any other form of transportation.

"I believe that the citizens of the Monterey Peninsula should realize more thoroughly than ever before that such a railroad as the Southern Pacific is a very tangible part of this community. The peninsula cities have been served well and faithfully for many years by the Southern Pacific and it has played a vital part in upbuilding the peninsula and the betterment of the lives of all our people. The railroad has paid and continues to pay such large amounts in taxes as to make them indispensible for this one fact alone. They furnish employment to many of our worthy citizens, whose efficiency and courtesy redound to the credit of the western lines. We cannot help but share in any measure of prosperity which they may attain in this new era of railroad progress.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Crossman went to San Francisco Tuesday, making the Clift their headquarters.

Publications Put Back on Shelves

Action of Carmel Library board at its monthly meeting Tuesday morning restored Pacific Weekly to library readers, along with a number of other publications which had been removed from the files because they had not been previously accepted as gift subscriptions. An old ruling that no gift magazines could be accepted until passed by the board, enforced recently, had swept the locally-published journal of opinion from display, together with a number of others.

Also decided at the monthly meeting was the replacement of the present oil heating system with gas heat, when it was discovered that installation of a gas stove in the lower room, where clerical and technical work is done by the staff, would be very little less expensive than a uniform gas heating system.

Library patrons are to be given an opportunity to cooperate in selection of new books by a new arrangement of the board. A box is to be placed on the loan desk in which readers may deposit suggestions of books which they would recommend for purchase. Not all suggestions can be acted upon, but in cases where many readers request the same volume it will receive first consideration by the book committee.

Four new members have recently been added to the book selecting committee: Dr. Ferdinand W. Haasis, Mrs. E. H. Yocum, Miss Elizabeth Mascord and Miss Agnes Knight. They augment the committee of which Mrs. Hurd Comstock is chairman, other members being Miss Elizabeth Niles, Mrs. John Dennis and Mrs. Karl G. Rendtorff.

ATTENDS STATE CONVENTION

Miss Ethel de Witt of the Pacific Grove library is attending the state library convention which is in session from the fifth to the eighth of June.

Asilomar Ready To Greet Nurses

Preparations are about complete at Asilomar to receive several hundred members of the California State Nurses' association which will convene there June 16 to 22 in its 32nd annual convention.

Mrs. Elva Arehart is the chairman of the committee which will be responsible for the organization of the conference, and her committee will include: Mrs. Ruth Temple of Salinas, county president; Miss Bertha Has, Miss Margaret McCole, Miss Marcia Reicks of Monterey, Miss Elizabeth Harris of Pacific Grove and Miss Jean McEachern of Carmel.

The California State association numbers 8000 registered nurses and 500 or more delegates are expected to participate in the convention.

Mrs. Harriet Fleming of Ontario is president of the organization, completing her fourth year and second term.

Among the groups which will hold meetings will be: the house of delegates, over which Mrs. Fleming presides; the private duty section, the chairman of which is Miss Laura Deacon of Petaluma; the directors of schools of nursing, together with instructors and ward administrators of nursing service; public health nurses and lay board and committee members who are actively supporting the ideals of good public health nursing.

TO INVADE GILROY

Representing their respective communities, 20 beautiful young women will take Gilroy by storm on Friday night, June 14, when they will compete at the cowboy dance for the honor of ruling over one of the annual Roundup and Gymkhana on June 15 and 16. Monterey's representative is Miss Mary Ann Leininger, popular young horsewoman of the younger set.

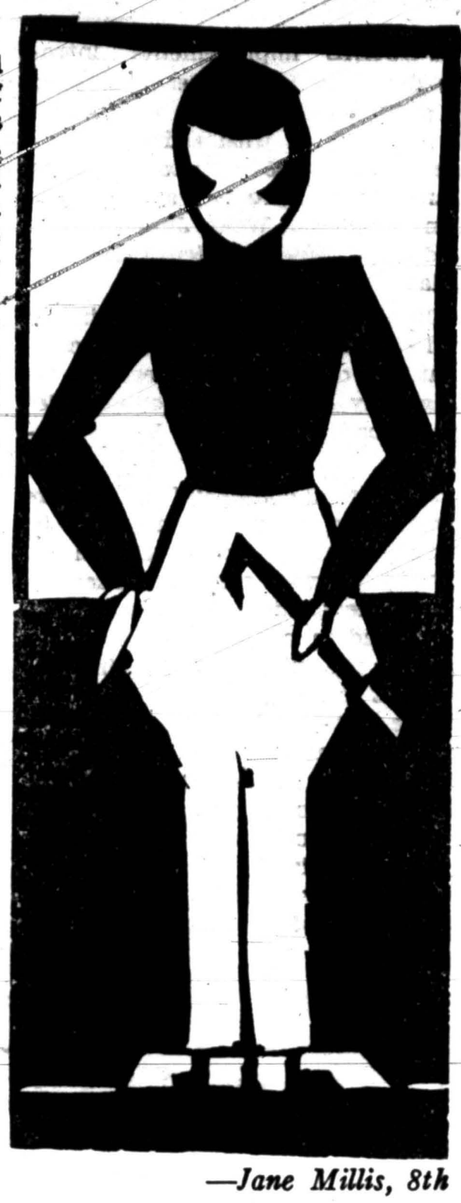
SCHOOL IS OUT, SO FISHING COMMENCES IN EARNEST; SUNSET STUDENTS TELL ABOUT IT



—Jane Millis, 8th

Vacation Here

The children of Carmel today will be released from the burden of school. Fishing poles will appear, as if by magic, from long forgotten hiding places. Weeks will pass, and bathing clothes will become worn from constant use. School will be forgotten and happiness and joy will reign. But this kingdom of happiness will be shattered by the realization that school is slated to open again. Once again children will flock o the unwelcome task of becoming educated. Thus another vacation will end when school opens on September 3.

PAT CRICHTON—8th.

Dear Parents:

Most of you shiver at the thought of vacation when the children will be on your hands for three whole months. But remember that teachers need a vacation as well as the children. Why not do the way the teachers do at school? The children will like their vacations much better if their activities are well balanced—not too much work or too much play. Remember that a well balanced vacation is as important to you and your children as a well balanced diet.

JANE ELLEN PARKER—7th.

Planning Vacation

Today there will be a hurry of boys and girls leaving the classroom for vacation. From now on you parents should start planning for a place for your children to spend a happy vacation. If I might suggest a place, I would say take them to a ranch and turn them loose, or take them out camping where there are no shows, no ice cream and candy stores. Take them away from town where they can get their minds off the things they do every day. Give them a good time so that they will feel like working when school starts again.

JACQUELINE HODGES—7th.

Warning to Parents

As our forefathers used to say, I take my pen in hand (chew it a bit) and prepare to give you parents a word of advice on how to plan a summer for your proteges. As I suppose you know, a summer that isn't well planned is likely to make your pride-and-joy lose a lot of good habits (formed in school) and acquire a host of bad ones. Therefore, I beg of you, supervise their activities so they won't forget all they've learned, and keep them in the house (in a straight jacket) so that they will learn poise and self-control. I promise that in the fall when they return they will be different children indeed.

CAROL CARD—8th.

Trout Fishing Instructions

When going trout fishing, always take a bottle of lotion along, so when you get a "bite" you can rub some on it. Next, get a bottle of salmon eggs, and throw them to the fish (this is an appetizer). A pole, about three feet long, will do. You want it short so you won't poke the fish while casting. The most important thing in fishing is that you have to have some water to fish in. When you find a good stream, bait your hook with toasted marshmallows. This gives a flavor not found in worms. The marshmallows get sticky in the water and get the fish so stuck up that you can wade in and catch them.

Now, to cook them. First get a frying pan and an asbestos pad. Place the pan on the fire and the pad in the pan. This pad is so you won't burn the fish, for this would hurt them very much. To eat them, cut them into small pieces and dip them in gingerale. This makes the gingerale turn pink. Now, throw the fish away and drink the gingerale.

CLAYTON ASKEW—7th.

Teach Your Child to Swim

As school is out, and vacation begins, if you wish to teach your child to swim, follow these directions: Give the child a rubber bathing suit. Be sure it is very colorful. This will please the water and it will not swallow the child whole. Take the child to a deep pool in some camping place. Take with you a pump. When the child wishes to take his first lesson, get out the pump and blow up the rubber bathing suit. This will prevent him from sinking. Then teach him to kick with his knees straight, only bent a little bit. Then each the arm srokes, like a duck will do. Then when you think the child can swim, stick a pin in the rubber bathing suit, and let the air out. If the child sinks and does not come up by the count of ten, go away and leave him there.

ROSE FUNCHESS—7th.

Mother's Joy

Amid babies' screams and hollers, mother is trying to get a little rest. While in the pantry the older brother, who has just got out of school, is trying to climb up the shelves, breaking dishes on the way, to get the candy on the top shelf. As mother turns over on the bed, and hides her head under the covers, she hears a loud crash of dishes and Jimmy has at last found the candy.

As the babies quiet down, and Jimmy has gone out of the house, Mother almost gets to sleep when older daughter bursts in with all of her boys friends and starts to play the radio as loud as it can possibly go. By this time Mother is so sleepy she goes to sleep in spite of all the noise. In her dreams she remembers the pleasant times she had when her children were all at school.

BABETTE DeMOE—7th.

Camping Out

If you have decided to camp out this summer, be sure to wear heavy clothing for it is very cold on the ground, if you intend to sleep there. You must take a phonograph with you because the mosquitos are terrible at night, and if you play music to put them to sleep they won't bite you.

BILLY FROLLI—7h.

A Fish for You

Fishing season is open. This is the time for you to get out the car and drive down to the river. Just yesterday I caught one fish. Don't let that worry you now, because your luck will be as good as mine. I will give you my place because my salmon eggs got stale. Hurry down right now. The fish are waiting for you.

GORDON STODDARD—5th.

What Is Wrong

Fishing season is open, and everybody is fishing. That's just what's wrong. There are so many people fishing that nobody catches any fish. I thought it might be the bait I was using, so I spent about three-quarters of an hour digging worms. When I had finished I put the cover on, and the next day they were all dead because I forgot to put holes in the cover. If this keeps up, I will be fishing in the fish pond in the park.

HOWARD LEVINSON—5th.

Old-Fashioned Country Fair Held at Pacific Grove with Trimmings

By DORIS COOK

GRENADIER hall in Pacific Grove was the scene of an old-fashioned country fair. First thing when we hit the door, who should come "lally-gaggin'" down the floor but "Cy" Henry Laughery with all the booth keepers and dancers "a-laggin'" along behind him. And well, folks, it sure looked mighty like the depression was over, by the looks of the fancy "duds" those "high-falutin'" folks had on. "Cy' took the floor and led them through two "fast-like" Virginia reels and quadrilles. Some "pretty high steppers" were glimpsed by yours truly.

Then the gents "unlimbered" themselves and showed their "womenfolk" that there was life in them yet, by participatin' in the box, potato and peanut races. Dressed like blind musicians, those talented producers of music, sister Thomas Furlong, and brothers John Taylor and Elmer Scholes, played some lively airs and the whole company begun to "shake a leg" and dance.

Tiring of such violent "goin's on," those assembled begun to patronize the booths where they bought hot dogs from sister and brother Milo Seward; candy from sister E. E. Scholes; ice cream from sister Alice Barnet; flowers from sister John Orchard. Then they played around in the fish pond presided over by sister John Taylor; visited Johnny Taylor Jr.'s handcraft booth; peeped into the penny-poppy shows watched over by brother Elmer Scholes; had their fortunes told by sister Janet Payne; after which they "wetted their whistles" with soft drinks from brother John Orchard's "bar." That "right cute" little Orchard girl, Esther, showed an exhibit of dolls and a complete bridal party and wedding company, including an old-fashioned "kiss-me-doll.'

Sister David Berwick worked pretty hard to make this affair come off all right and she was assisted right well by sister and brother Henry Laughery, sister and brother C. E. Gerald, sister and brother John Taylor, sister and brother E. E. Scholes, sister Alice Barnet, and sister and brother John Orchard and in fact by all the members of the Grenadier Club.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

In all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., a Lesson-Sermon will be read Sunday, June 9, on the subject, "God the Only Cause and Creator."

The Golden Text will be: "Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world" (Act 15: 18). Bible selections will include the following passages from Job 42: 1-3, 5, "Then Job answered the Lord, and said, I know that thou canst do every thing, and that no thought can be withholden from thee. Who is he that hideth counsel without knowledge? herefore have I uttered that I understood not; things too wonderful for me, which I knew not . . . I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear: but now mine eye seeth thee."

A passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included, which reads as follows: "The foundation of mortal discord is a false sense of man's origin. To begin rightly is to end rightly. Every concept which seems to begin with the brain begins falsely. Divine Mind is the only cause or Principle of existence. Cause does not exist in matter, in mortal mind, or in physical forms" (p. 262).

Spring Motif Lends Crispness to Current Exhibit at Art Gallery

By THELMA B. MILLER

IN the unjuried hanging now upon the walls at Carmel Art Gallery for the month of June, several worthy exhibits seen in previous shows reappear among a group of newer oils. Spring appears to be the motif, the definite theme of several of the paintings, and lending a fresh and vital crispness to the show as a whole.

"Reading from left to right"—Homer Levinson offers "Carmel Cove" in fine deep color, and a background of cloud-shadowed hills. Armind Hansen has two entries; "April" all in greens, even the sky, as if painted under the water, and a classical feeling in a group of weathered old buildings and a farmer following his farm-horses. The other is one of his famous groups of characterful fishermen, heads and faces only, in earnest conversation.

Sun Over Taos

It is good to see again John O'Shea's "Desert Village"; New Mexico under full sun and with a peculiarly luminous desert sky. Burton Bounday's exhibit is a composition full of light and delicate color; little yellow boats on green water. "Winter in Carmel," by Mary C. Scovel, is dominated by snow-peaked mountains. She also shows a sun-washed study of the rolling hills bordering Carmel Valley.

Another canvas previously shown is James Fitzgerald's effective "Hills of Carmel Valley," with rich color in the rounded hilltops which rise from rounded masses of oak trees. "Booth Cannery" is a gay little study rich in color and detail, old-worldly rather than suggestive of high-geared modern industry, as seen by Jeannette Maxfield Lewis.

Outstanding, as they must be in any show, are the two entries of Arthur Hill Gilbert; "Up the Road" and "View of Toro"; California from the brush of a master, exquisite and meticulous in detail, true in color, executed with a strength and finish which makes many other landscape painters appear tentative by contrast.

To Spring

"Spring Morning," with its pale yellow-green grassy slope and leaden blue shadows is by Thomas A. McGlynn, and a fit companion-piece is Nora Nichols Grabill's "Call of Spring," equally youthful and verdant. J. Vennerstrom Cannon offers what she calls a "portrait sketch" of a young man, rather disturbingly verticle. Henrietta Shore's unconventional compositon of blossoms and sea-gulls is well-named "California data," and as always, is distinguished by her flawlessly smooth application of color and crisp line.

In "Monterey Oaks," Josephine Culbertson has caught the spirit of California summer, with grass toasted brown, the oaks persistently if dustily green, majestic and harmonious in their great strength.

"Marin Bay," also by Cannon, is a lovely curve of blue water, colorful roofs seen through trees and from a hill. Elizabeth Strong has an amazing but not inaccurate blue in ocean as seen from Seventeen Mile Drive, through a pattern of cypress branches. De Neale Morgan has done tricks with the Carmel sand dunes which are her particular preserve ;the blue shadow which appears to overlie the white sand is really a color-refraction from blazing sun. She also has a charming study of a "typical" Carmel cottage in the woods, with its bright garden, sun and shadow of oaks.

Fruit Trees on Lobos?

Ida Maynard Curtis' "Point Lobos" is given a rather unfamiliar delicacy by a spray of what appears to be fruit-blossoms. A painting of hers, called fancifully "Chimes of a Great City," has the place of honor on the square of the far wall which Nelly Montague, the curator, reserves for favorites of her own. It is a study of city roofs and spires, in pastel delicacy of color.

The Virgin comes to the shores of Point Lobos bay in Moira Wallace's innocent classical arrangement of angels, mother and child, with the Carmelite monastery folded in distant hills. A charming young mother and her brown-eyed babe are informally posed by Edda M. Heath, who also has a marine of unusual color quality. Damo Vuletich's "Dalmatian Sunset" is a definite composition of Italian cypresses and terrace, in his usual fantasic blaze of color stippled on. Smart, handsome and brittle-surfaced is the portrait which the artist, Alvin Beler, calls "Rita." Gorgeous colors, amusing and graceful detail distinguish Roberta Balfour's oriental still-life; a richly embroidered skirt background for a vase of iris, a tiny porcelain lady.

Pinon Players to Open on June 14

Harriet M. Smith's summer stock company, The Pinon Players, will open the season on Friday, June 14, at the Carmel Playhouse with a presentation of St. John Ervine's comedy, "The First Mrs. Fraser." This performance, under the direction of Miss Smith, will mark the opening of the first semi-professional, summer stock company on the Pacific coast. It will be repeated on Saturday and Sunday evenings, June 15 and 16, at 8:30 o'clock.

Miss Beatrice Newport will play the title role of Mrs. Fraser, the character which Grace George made famous a few years ago. Miss Newport has been acting at the Pasadena Community Theatre the past three years, where she has been seen in many characterizations. Playing opposite her is Franklin Wilbur, who enacted the same role a year ago with great success at the Pacific Little Theatre in Stockton. Gene Rilla Cady who has spent the past year in New York studying acting under Madame Ouspenskaya will be seen as the sophisticated Second Mrs. Fraser. Playing supporting roles are Harry Mines, Sylvia Zeff, Florence Rust, and Yancey Smith.

Assisting Miss Smith on the production are Charles Monroe, business manager of the organization, and Palmer Field, who has designed the smart settings. Mr. Field has had experience under Donald Oenslager, one of New York's most prominent scene designers. Assisting Mr. Field in the construction of the settings is Stuart King from the famous Yale University Theatre. Buell Whitehill, master electrician and technician, is arriving by plane next Monday to light the production.

Tickets will go on sale next Monday at the Carmel Playhouse box office on Monte Verde street and reservations can be made by phoning Carmel 403 after 11:00 a. m.

PUPPET EDUCATION

The ancient art of puppetry is being used at the California Pacific International Exposition by the state department of education to portray the extent of the adult education program in California.

SERA Art Project at School Is Progressing

The SERA art project is coming along nicely, under the direction of Mrs. Lita Bathen. Since the work is to be done for Sunset School, the P-T. A. is providing $150, the board of trustees $10 and the SERA is providing the rest.

There are to be eight beautiful wildflower panels for the first grade room, done by Cicely Edwards. A carved wood enameled fire screen is to be made for the kindergarten. Bill Kneass is making screens to be used for exhibit in the second and third grade rooms. The screens are to be made of Philippine mahogany. George Seideneck of Carmel Valley, who has been painting at the Presidio, is to create paintings for the classrooms and foyer of the school. His first painting will be a composition on "Fishing Boats at St. Ives."

Miss De Neale Morgan, another artist working on this project, will make paintings to be placed in any classroom. Miss Evelyn McCormick, who has just finished a painting for the Monterey High School, is making a painting of the Stevenson House for Sunset School.

New Nash Has Many Excellent Features

Eliminating hundreds of previously essential parts, the new Nash "400" which is now being displayed for the first time at the showrooms of Lorin D. Lacey, features the monitor sealed motor and the newest all-steel one-piece metal top.

The Monitor sealed motor does away with exterior manifolding and all the gadgets and small parts which exterior manifolding requires. Instead of these parts the manifolding is cast right into the cylinder block, and it is claimed that much greater efficiency is obtained. This simplicity makes all engine parts more easily accessible and consequently reduces time on nearly all motor work, it is said.

Other features included in the new Nash "400" include 117-inch wheelbase, 6-cylinder 90-H. P. motor, all steel one-piece body, and "no hood lifting." The oil level is registered on a dashboard guage, and both oil and water are conveniently added through an accessible hatch at the front of the hood.

This feature makes possible the bolting of the hood in place, eliminating all possibility of hook squeaks and rattles.

Many other features are introduced by Nash in the "400" car which is priced very low, but as Lacey says, "There's no use trying to tell it all in a story; just tell 'em to come in for a ride."

DRIVER'S FIRST DUTY

There are a number of inescapable duties which every driver owes his car but clamoring for a leading, if not actually the first, place among them is that of checking the oil gauge. The careful driver will notice its performance instantly the engine is started. Thereafter, he will keep a weather eye upon what it is recording until the engine is stopped again.

We have only stumbled on a few barrels of physical laws from the great pool of knowledge.—Charles F. Kettering, famed engineer.

Thirty-Six Carmel Students at Monterey High Graduate June 13

CARMEL students attending Monterey High School numbering 36 will be in the large graduating class which will receive diplomas on June 13. Four Carmel Valley students will also graduate. Last week, "Senior Week" at Monterey Union High School, was an eventful one for 1935's graduates. It began auspiciously with the day set aside for the wearing of hair ribbons and flashy ties (ladies first) by the seniors. Senior boys also participated in a mock swimming meet, witnessed by seniors alone, outstanding in which were William Jensen, Walter Smith, Robert Kennedy, John Logan and Jim Hurl.

Tuesday was "Senior Dress-up Day," during which costumes of all sorts made their appearance. Carl Van Atta's monstrosity, a grass skirt and hat and coat; Kevin Wallace's get-up as a southern colonel, complete with mustache and goatee of moss, and Danny Lockwood's censored "Knight of the Bath" costume —a towel and a piece of soap—were appreciated and applauded. The costumes of Sheila Thomson, Maxine Arnold, and Violet Bileci were unique, though "kiddie" costumes predominated among the girls. Nina Stahl was awarded a prize for her rompers and hair bow at a noon costume dance.

* * *

The Senior breakfast occurred Wednesday at Hotel San Carlos, most of the potential graduates being present. After a hearty meal of ham and eggs, songs were offered by Kevin Wallace, Douglas Fast, and Marcia Frisbee, Jean Funchess accompanying. Joe Schoeninger orated on various topics of the day. A dance was held at noon, during which the winner of a whiskerino contest, William Jensen, was made known.

ENTERTAINERS NEEDED AT CARMEL VALLEY SERA CAMP

Lecturers or other entertainers of all kinds will find an appreciative audience at Carmel Valley SERA camp, according to Jack Morris, who is in charge of recreation at the camp. Playing cards would also be very acceptable. Anyone having donations, or wishing to volunteer their services as entertainer, is asked to phone Jack Morris at 313 or W. J. Bensburg at 930-J.

HOLLER the GOODS!

I do not begrudge the time and money I spent advocating the formation of a Utility District.

Considering the large number of investor-type of voters living on the Peninsula, it is remarkable that one-third of those interested have the public's welfare in mind.

HOW ABOUT WATER NOW?

The utility district is defeated, and by unanimous action of the three cities. It is well for each of the communities that all were of the same mind; a highly anomalous situation would have resulted if any two had voted to form the district and the third had elected to stay out.

Now, what next? Our "citizens' committee" has made large, if vague, promises of "better ways" of securing redress from excessively high water rates. For rates are exorbitantly high in this district, notwithstanding the good lady in Pebble Beach who remarked, at a mass meeting here, that she had never considered her monthly water bill of $25 anything to be disturbed about. Most of us are not in this fortunate position. And it is hard to understand the point of view of water users who are terrified at the prospect of "higher taxes" which would be spent for the benefit of local people, and yet pay with equanimity excessive water rates which benefit distant investors.

How about it, citizens' committee? What are you going to do to secure lower water rates? Is it not a fact that we will soon find ourselves "taxed" in another way, to provide the water company with the revenue to replace antiquated equipment? How is Carmel going to secure an adequate flow of water for fire protection?

The utility district was defeated not entirely by apathy on the part of local voters, but at least in part by an expensive publicity campaign, directed from San Francisco, and probably financed at least in part from San Francisco. The "citizens' committee" would not have appeared so happy about it if they had been footing the bill, for it was a big bill. All of these facts leave some large and unanswered questions in the minds of peninsula people.

THE NEW THEATRE

Carmel is to have a new motion picture theatre. It is expected that the builders will take into consideration the peculiar and artistic temperament of Carmel and give us an architectural structure which will be pleasing to the aesthetic eye, not excessively urban or pretentious.

If Carmelites are to enjoy motion pictures in a theatre in their own town, they will want to feel that they are doing so within the four walls of a building which will not grate upon their senses upon entering or leaving, or which will be a pleasing spectacle to them in their daily contact with the physical elements of their town. Just like the feeling they have in wearing clothes which please them.

It is to be expected that Carmelites will not be shocked by neon lights and a glaring marque, but that a sedate entrance in keeping with environment will be the outcome of the architect's dream. These things are more or less promised through Carmel's building ordinance.

But how about the Theatre of the Golden Bough? There is at the present time an organization being formed which will attempt to raise funds for the restoration of this notable enterprise. Carmel, Pebble Beach and Highlands people will be approached in the matter of funds, and the imperative need of action will be impressed upon them.

Not only these districts, but the whole peninsula should take an interest in this worthy project, which would bring back to Carmel the theatre tradition which it has established throughout the years. Here's wishing the project success.

Insurance men say that insurance is the one thing that cannot be bought when it is needed.

CARMEL HILL-TOP

I was lost in fear
When I came here—
But the cotton-tail frisks where he will
And bees buzz ever,
A-hunting clover,
And the meadow-lark carols his trill.
My worries cease,
Evening brings peace,
As the sun-light leaves the hill.

And all through the night,
To my deep delight,
The rhythm-rolling surf is never still
Then fog drifts away
From a new-born day,
Leaves crystalline clarity, until
Each pine's a silhouette—
And this I'll not forget,
The way they point is always up the Hill.

—MARY EAST MILLER.

Here's Looking at You

By LOIS COLLINS PALMER

CALIFORNIA's great and magnificent major highways will be, before many more years, one continuous city street linking California's towns and cities from one end of the state to the other. They are too much like that now. If you must hurry on important business errands they are well enough to use, but if you are driving for fun, it is well to keep to the back roads.

◆ ◆ ◆

Carmelites do a good bit of motoring in a leisurely manner, and should explore the back roads. I wonder how many of you have taken the drive to San Francisco, or any of the towns "down the peninsula," by way of Half-Moon Bay? This road is dangerous and sometimes impassable during the winter, I understand, but right now it is in fairly good condition, without difficulties for the average driver, and traverses some magnificent back-country, virtually untouched by civilization. It lengthens the trip to San Francisco considerably, both by adding mileage, and, with all its twists and turns and narrowness, forcing you to go slowly and see the country. The route is impressively varied; it has steep climbs and dizzy descents; winds through dark forests and along barren cliffs and through high meadows. Where it follows the ocean shore it discloses a type of coastline not quite like any other in the state.

Another way of avoiding heavy traffic and ugly highway stands is to leave the main highway from San Jose a little this side of Morgan Hill and come over to Watsonville by way of Hecker Pass. This is perhaps the prettiest of the numerous routes through the mountains. Heavily forested slopes are interspersed with interesting hillside orchards and fields, and the natives you see have that wholesome bucolic look and bits of hay clinging to their hair Their offspring may attend the city high schools and they themselves may listen to sophisticated radio programs and see movies every night, but there is something about working with the soil that gives them an expression of balance and sanfty when they exchange long stares with the occupants of a leisurely passing car.

And then there's Chittenden pass that brings you out at a comfortable distance from picturesque old San Juan Bautista mission, now a state memorial, and well worth a visit. The place is small and out of the current of progress; a drowsy, interesting spot for a quiet afternoon. Chittenden pass is almost, but not quite, as lovely as Hecker pass.

And by the way; speaking of Hecker pass, arrange sometime to come over it from the north in the early morning. The light should be behind you when you come around that last curve and have the dazzling spectacle of the Pajaro Valley and its neat checkerboard of fields below you, and the ocean far in the distance. Later in the day the haze and the sun in your eyes destroys much of the spectacular quality of this really super-special view.

OUR FLEXIBLE CONSTITUTION

Whence this sudden clamour of the "sacredness" of the constitution? Not the original document, as turned out by our revolutionary forefathers, but as it stands today, has suddenly become, if you listen to the voices of reaction, sacrosanct, inviolate.

Every amendment to the constitution thus far has had its opposition. But we do not recall another occasion when suggestion of making our admirably flexible fundamental law more responsive to the will of the people has aroused such violent defense of the document in its present form.

The moment the constitution ceases to be flexible, subject to modification in accordance to the needs of the times, at that moment it becomes moribund. We are astounded at the bitterness and violence that have greeted the suggestion that certain changes are needed in order to permit the administration to work out a program which will certify those very equal rights and privileges which are guaranteed in our basic law. The cohorts of entrenched privilege foresee an effort to break their strangle-hold on our economic life. Wrapping themselves in the stars and stripes, they decry as unpatriotic and traitorous the attempts of President Roosevelt to unclench their throttling fingers.

There is nothing sacred about our economic system. When an economic system menaces the peace, happiness and security of a great people, it must be regulated by government. Thirteen isolated, independent colonies, living under the conditions of 150 years ago, had logic on their side in attempting to preserve individual independence and freedom of action. Forty-eight states, sprawling across a continent, cannot be governed by a system that well served a handful of people. Forces of exploitation cannot be held in check by 48 conflicting sets of laws. The time has come when a strong central government is imperative. It can be effected under the existing constitution, provided the forces of reaction and entrenched privilege will permit it. Theirs is not the right to tell us that at this time the constitution is finished, complete, and that no further changes are permissible. Amendments to the constitution are not "overthrow" of government now, any more than in times past.

THANKS FOR FINE EDITIONS!

The last two issues of The Pine Cone indicate that it is impossible to flip a pebble in any direction in Carmel without hitting a good writer, either adult or juvenile. The grown folks had their chance in the Perry Newberry number; the result was writing of a type which not one weekly newspaper in ten thousand could evoke from its subscribers. But even more amazing was the quality of the writing in the Sunset School number.

It is not only that they write astoundingly well, for children not yet in their teens. The shrewdness of their understanding, their clear-eyed vision, their willingness to tackle problems, the business-like way in which they went about news-gathering all earned the awed respect of The Pine Cone staff, and, from the comments we have received, of Pine Cone readers.

To Boice Richardson, able editor of The Pine Cone for one week, to his news staff, and to their efficient and gifted faculty adviser, Miss Anna Marie Baer, our profound thanks for the finest Pine Cone of the year.

How does it happen the Supreme Court has not been asked for a ruling on the constitutionality of RFC. Is it because "no one ever shoots Santa Claus?"

ART NOTES

By J. VENNERSTROM CANNON

A lecturer speaking before an audience on Charles Darwin and his work, was accosted at the close of the hour by a sweet Methodist lady who leaned across the desk and in hushed whispers informed the speaker: "I do not believe in evolution!" Swiftly came back the gruff reply, "It goes on just the same, Madame."

I find in the field of art a counterpart to this anecdote. In spite of the thousands who resent and disavow the creative in art: "it goes on just the same." Even the lay person who is always a half, if not a whole generation behind the artist, must have noticed as he glances over the history of western art some six centuries that here and there along the trail will be some outstanding, intensely alive painter who has in common terminology, "blazed a trail." The sum total of such artists' work constitutes what I have come to look upon as the evolution of art. And the names Giotto, El Greco, Cezanne, Matisse and Picasso are a few that mark this path.

Because it is true that the general public is always behind the artist, the world "Expressionism," current for almost 50 years in the artists' vernacular, is just now coming to be known by the public.

There has appeared off the press a book written by Sheldon Cheney, entitled "Expressionism in Art", (published 1934). To the reader familiar with Sheldon Cheney's "Primer of Art" published about 11 years ago, the advent of this new volume will have deep significance. Mr. Cheney in the beginning of his new volume makes a parallel study of what has happened in the field of painting, sculpture, architecture and the dance, during the past 50 years. He names as emancipators from imitation, realism, photography, history, in these four fields, respectively Cezanne, Malloil, Sullivan and Isadora Duncan, while Gordon Craig and Appia have achieved simplicity and sincerity for the drama.

From a work so intensely fraught with life, thought and action in so many fields of the arts, it becomes difficult to choose items for reviewing. A large part of the volume sets forth the factors dealing with the making of a creative piece of work in the field of painting. The building of the picture which is to be not realism nor photography, nor imitation, nor illusions nor illustration, but something from an artist's inner self, subconsciously rather than consciously, and growing out of the spiritual in contrast to the material, which fact alone can make a work live through the ages. And so, plastic orchestration, planes and volumes and spaces, rhythms and axial-relationships, to say nothing of receding and advancing colors become the problem under consideration. And one wonders as one reads whether any painter trained in the realism which has held sway and dominated the world for so many centuries with only here and there a live spark can ever grasp that more vital conception of painting from within and creating like God.

Expressionism is the term that defines the process of creating pictures from within. We go back to the early Chinese, Indian, Persian and African for examples. Many artists like Albert Ryder, the American; Doumier, the Frenchman, and several ridiculed contemporary moderns are revaluated and come into their own. Whistler appears in direct contrast to what I have come to look upon (the phrasing is my own) as the swish painters—Besnard Chase and Sargent, who it seems now painted much, thought and felt little. Shall we be able to reverse the process, think much and paint little? Heaven help us that we may!

The book is illustrated with 205 cuts. The footnotes record the titles of innumerable books recently published here and abroad, and the reading of which would enlarge one's understanding of the creative spirit in the fields of art. That the volume is the most significant that has appeared or will appear for a long time to come, there can be no doubt.

MISS CELIA B. SEYMOUR TO REMAIN IN CARMEL

Miss Celia B. Seymour has returned to Carmel to reside permanently in her studio on Junipero street, since the death of her uncle, Brace Hayden, with whom she has been making her home. Miss Seymour has just completed a portrait of the mother of Dr. Aurelia Reinhardt, president of Mills College. Another of her recent paintings was a portrait of Pop Ernst. Her altar piece at All Saints church here is well known.

Ask Permit for Service Station

Under terms of a city ordinance which species service stations as a type of structure which can be built only after public hearing and opportunity for protest, June 19 was set as the date for a hearing in the council chambers on the request of Fred and Clara Leidig to build a "super service station" at the corner of Seventh and San Carlos. Drawings of the proposed building were submitted to the council, with written request for permission to build, at the meeting Wednesday evening.

The Berthold Motor Company, agents for Ford automobiles, would occupy the display room of the structure, and Gilmore Oil company is seeking outlet for its products through the proposed service station.

Mr. and Mrs. Normal Reynolds and their daughter, Miss Betty, plan to leave Tuesday to drive back to Greenwich, Conn., their former home. They will remain for about two months.

Helen Hamilton to Give Dance Recital

Helen Hamilton and Beatrice Lewis, dancers, are to be presented by the Denny-Watrous Gallery in recital Saturday evening, June 15. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hamilton of Carmel Highlands, Helen Hamilton is well known in Carmel, and there is much interest in the coming event.

A few months ago Miss Hamilton and Miss Lewis gave a recital in the French theatre in San Francisco, which was greeted with warm appreciation. The two young women have been working together for the last two years, and are making a program of the modern dance which is of great original interest and has decided beauty of form.

Miss Hamilton has studied the dance in New York, Chicago and San Francisco. During Benjamin Zemach's stay in San Francisco, she was a part of his group.

Pasquin Bradfield will accompany at the piano, and music of Poulenc, Resphigi, Moussorgsky, Gershwin, Bach, Satie, Beethoven, Milhaud, and Yamada will be used. One number, dedicated to Gertrude Stein, "Rapsodie is a rapsodie is a rapsodie" is delightful in its fresh humor.

This Veil of Tears

By PHIL NESBITT

Speaker—Last Monday, John Nesbitt, youth extraordinary of Station KFRC, in San Francisco, spoke his program called, "Head Lines of the Past." Bulwarked by a background of genuine scholarship, he deals with ideas and words with the skill of Roosevelt. He has a "national tang" to his voice. Since he has been on KFRC, no obstacle has stood in his path. The writer is interested in right success of youth, as opposed to the introduction of such plans as the Townsend. The well springs of Truth lie in the clear heads of thoughtful young people.

Pianist—Alice Austin, flaxen eyebrowed, deft-fingered, plays the piano with great skill. It appears that she is willing to take pupils, believing in the perpetuation of music. You can't miss her. To contrast the flaxen eyebrows, she wears a briliant red beach suit.

Camera User—Ross Cowen, clever photographer, will reward his believers with the best in portraits, etc. Not new to Carmel, nor old, he opens a smallish studio on San Carlos, and potentially justifies his claims as a camera artist.

Memory of Jane Addams Honored

All Saints' church was filled with a reverent Carmel audience Friday evening, gathered to pay respect to the memory of Jane Addams, "not for her sake, but for our own," in the words of Miss Mary A. Bulkley, who opened the program, and after her own brief and eloquent tribute, introduced Judge Mary Barthelme, friend and associate of Miss Addams for many years. Miss Bulkley explained that despite the fresh and personal grief of Judge Barthelme, which made her at first reluctant to appear on the program, she came to the decision that the very privilege of having known the great reformer and social worker, "touchstone of her generation," conferred upon her a responsibility which she was unable to evade.

"She lived the commandment 'thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," said Judge Barthelme, in giving many little incidents of her association with Miss Addams when both were engaged in social work in Chicago, Miss Addams at Hull house, and herself as judge of the juvenile court. She spoke of "the benediction of her presence" in dissolving the rancor and advancing the understanding of groups met to solve knotty problems of social service.

Reading many excerpts from Miss Addams' own book, "Twenty Years in Hull House," the speaker chose those passages which shed particular light on the writer's character. Both speakers mentioned the occasion, half a dozen years ago, when Miss Addams spoke to an appreciative group at the Theatre of the Golden Bough. Judge Barthelme closed with a recounting of her final meeting with Miss Addams, not many weeks ago, when she was in Berkeley to receive an honorary degree from the University of California, last of a long list of honors conferred upon her by an appreciative world.
